Tuber Ledger

A record book for dahlia growers. One line for every clump, from dig day to plant-out. Kept, sold and traded always add up to the divisions.

What is in this folder

Tuber Ledger.html	The tool. Double-click it and it opens in your browser. Clump list, counts, check notes, tag sheet, CSV and JSON export. No account, no install.
Tag sheet (blank, fillable).pdf	One page of eight blank tags (Letter, turned sideways). Type into the boxes on screen, or print and write by hand.
Paper tuber log.pdf	Two blank pages of the ledger for the shed bench. Same columns as the tool. For days when there is no screen.

Open the tool

1. Keep Tuber Ledger.html in one folder you will not move, and open it from there every time. Your browser saves your records for the place you open it from.
2. Use a normal browser window. A private or incognito window forgets everything when you close it.
3. Press Try six example clumps to see how it looks. Delete them from the Ledger when you are done, or use Clear everything on the Backup tab.

The growing year in the tool

Fall: dig and divide

Press Add a clump. Write the variety, a clump ID, the dig date, and how many divisions you cut. Give the clump its ID on a tag before it is washed.

Winter: store and check

Open the clump and add a check: the date, what you saw (firm, shrivelled, rotted or other), a note. If you binned some, enter how many. Div. goes down by that number.

Spring: plant out

Set the plant-out date. As tubers leave, press the plus under Sold or Traded. Whatever is left is Kept.

Any time

Tick For sale or For trade on a clump, then use the Show menu to see only those.
